Moriarty, Plantagenet Ancestry, p. 19, shows the following descent for the "House of Parma":

1. Maurin, Pfalzgraf, a Salic Frank, fl. 835-844.
2. Suppo II of Spoleto, Count of Camerino {871-875}, d. 882/8.
3. Berthilda, fl. 889-910, d. after 915. Married circa 880 Beranger I, d. 924, Margrave of Friuli, King of Italy, Roman Emperor.

Moriarty suggests that Maurin perhaps descended from a Count Suppo I of Brescia, fl. 814.

Generations 2 and 3, above, are confirmed in Schwennicke (ed.) Europäische Stammtafeln (ES), ii, 188A.

Moriarty, p. 74, Winkhaus, p. 193, and Turton, p. 184, as well as Stuart, lines 265, 330 and 53, all show essentially the following male ancestry for Guido I, Duke of Spoleto:

1. Warinus of Poitiers. Died 677. He married Kunza, daughter of St. Clodoule of Metz Bishop. FI 698, 705-717.
2. Lievin \ Leutwinus of Treves Bishop. Died circa 722. Buried in Mettlach. Count, then Bishop of Treves {705-717}. FI 705, 717.
3. Gui of Treves. Count {706-722}.
4. Lambert of Hornbach. Died after 782. Count & Lord of Hornbach {760-ca783}.
5. Gui on the Breton March Count. Died 814. FI 782-799.
6. Lambert of Nantes Count. Died 1 Sep 836 in Italy. Count of Nantes {818-834}. He married ? [dau. of Pepin of Lombardy], daughter of Pepin of Lombardy King & Gundora (Gondres \ Theress).
7. Guido I of Spoleto Duke. Died circa 858. FI 842. He married Itana \ Judith.

ES ii, 188B starts with Lambert, generation 6, above.

I have not found a connection between these two lines (which overlap in time) except for common descendants several generations down the line.

Moriarty, by the way, refers to Chaume, "Les origines du Volume I contains the genealogical tables. Formally *Les origines* is a two volume work, but volume II is printed in three sections (II.1, II.2, II.3)

How are you able to get such a well-behaved chart? Whenever I try something like this in Eudora Light it ends up a mess.
